

PRO BONO: | For the fun of it?

Yes. Financial planning doesn't have to be all Roth Conversions and market fluctuation. Take a break from mind bending and exercise your giving muscle - the heart.

The Pro Bono Committee offers 3 ways to volunteer:

Job Corps

Help high school seniors transition to the working environment by teaching basic money management skills. Includes goal setting, saving, budgeting, banking skills and credit/debt management.

Junior Achievement

Teach a series of 5 lesson plans about workforce readiness, entrepreneurship and financial literacy, to students at varying grade levels. Share your real world experience!

EARN (Earned Assets Resource Network)

EARN is a San Francisco non-profit that aims to break the cycle of poverty among low wage workers. Get trained to lead an education workshop.
